Best tips I have learned and gathered from agencies collectively responsible for more than 300M in revenue and billions and billions of views/impressions.
Working with them, managing the marketing and STEALING from them because you know what in this world you got to get ahead.

Ofm is not a charity, it's a hustle. Only those serious get to have the edge provided here.

Instagram - Your Foundation

Account Setup:

- Buy aged accounts with 40-50%+ US followers (no fake followers or you're screwed)
- Or build your own with iPhone 13+ and separate SIM cards
- Never put more than 3 accounts on the same router/device

Getting Trust:

- Warm up new accounts by engaging with US celebs and athletes first
- This shoots your trust score through the roof

Posting:

- 2 posts per day
- Focus on hooks that keep people watching
- Engagement and watch time are everything

Threads - Still Easy Money

Volume:

- 5-8 posts daily when starting
- Drop to 3-5 posts once established

What Works:

- Carousels perform better than anything else
- Find what goes viral, then beat it to death
- Comment baiting works but don't go over 30 per day per account
- You can run up to 20 accounts per creator

TikTok - High Reward, High Burnout

Reality Check:

- Accounts die fast, don't get attached
- First 1-3 posts usually pop - if you get multiple posts under 100 views, kill the account

Content Strategy:

- Best: Creator films directly in TikTok app
- Second best: Give raw footage to team to chop up
- 3 posts per day per account

Live Streaming:

- Going live and redirecting to OF for "naughty content" still crushes it

Twitter/X - Viral Traffic Machine

Posting:

- 2-5 posts daily
- Must be shareable or controversial (or both)

Growth Hacks:

- Retweet trades with similar creators (track everything in spreadsheets, drop dead weight)
- Retweet groups grow numbers but convert poorly
- Use sexy pics for comment + controversial comment
- Comment bait on the top engagement niches and accounts (sports, memes, politics, crypto, breaking news ect)
- Paid promos are cheap but only work if your content is already viral-worthy

Warning:

- DMs can burn accounts fast, use carefully

Reddit - Hidden Goldmine

Tech Setup:

- Use antidetect browsers (GoLogin, Dolphin, AdsPower)
- Run 4G/5G proxies
- Buy aged accounts with karma to skip the grind

Posting Strategy:

- Minimum 5 posts per day
- Rotate subreddits
- Never reuse content on the same day
- Don't buy fake upvotes - real engagement wins long term

Subreddit Selection:

- Target smaller, active niche subs
- Avoid massive subs with mods who hate OF creators

Long-Form Content - Your Insurance Policy

Why It Matters:

- YouTube and streams build real relationships
- Higher quality traffic than short-form content
- If OF disappears tomorrow, you still have an audience

Content Types:

- Fitness niche: vlog and diet series
- Gaming: streaming
- Any niche: behind-the-scenes content

Double Dipping:

- Chop long-form into shorts for more content

What Actually Drives Growth

Distribution: Multiple accounts per platform (buy + build your own farm)

Volume: Flood content daily - consistency beats creativity every time

Virality: Hooks, controversy, and shareability are your growth engines

Highest ROI Right Now:

- Reddit for direct traffic
- TikTok live for conversions

Long-Term Protection: YouTube and streaming give you options if everything else goes to shit

This isn't about being creative or artistic. This is about volume, consistency, and understanding what each platform rewards. Play their games, use their algorithms, and always have backup plans.

Of course. This is an incredibly detailed script from a high-level OnlyFans marketing agency. The core message is that success isn't about working harder, but about working smarter with a proven, systematic approach.

The big lesson is this: hard work and consistency will get you started, but they'll also trap you. You can grind your way to $10K a month, but you'll never break past that wall unless you start using leverage. Leverage means building systems that scale without depending on your time.

The framework has four levers. Master these and you win.

Lever 1: The Viral Hook Engine

If your content looks like everyone else's, you stay broke. Forget copying dance trends or lip syncs. Find your own lane. Polarizing content that sparks curiosity, humor, or shock will carry you. Some proven styles are raw "talking in the car" confessionals or wild Omegle reaction videos.

Post a lot at first—four times a day on IG, six on TikTok. Not for vanity metrics, but for data. This is how you learn what actually hits. Engineer your hooks—the first three seconds should grab attention and interrupt patterns. Cut what doesn't work, double down on what does.

Lever 2: Funnel Optimization

Most creators waste almost all their traffic. Your link should take people straight to your OnlyFans, no distractions. Use urgency—scarcity works because it triggers FOMO. The welcome message is your number one money maker. It should push fans to spend in the first 60 seconds with a cheap but high-value bundle. Pin PPVs with blurred previews and trigger words like "tentacle" so buyers can unlock instantly without chatting. Don't forget expired subs—bring them back with offers. Audit your funnel end to end and make it as simple as possible for people to spend money.

Lever 3: Chat Monetization

Stop spamming mass DMs. Chatting is where most of the money is made, so treat it like sales. Track everything—names, fetishes, what they've bought before. That data lets you personalize and upsell. AI can help here, but only if it feels authentic—like voice notes in your own tone.

High spenders (whales) should be flagged and given VIP treatment. Run keyword triggers for PPVs so instant buyers get served right away. Systemize chatting so you're not winging it.

Lever 4: Scale With Systems

The real scale happens when you get other people pushing your content. Build a clipping army—people who repost your stuff everywhere. It's dirt cheap and gets you traffic around the clock. Write down SOPs for everything so you can hand it off to VAs or a team. Your role should shift from being the worker to being the creative CEO—the one directing the machine, not running it by hand.

The Creator's DNA

All of this only works if the creator has the right traits. They need to be coachable, consistent, data-driven, and willing to put in extreme output before results show up. They can't act entitled. And they need to reinvest profits back into growth.

Bottom line: stop grinding like a hamster. Become the operator of a system. Find your unique content edge, build a funnel that converts, monetize conversations with precision, and scale through systems and people. That's how you break past the plateau.

Extra

1. Account Infrastructure = The Bottleneck Most Agencies Never Solve

- They scaled because they invested in phone farms + iPhone 13+ devices → trust score = higher reach.
- 1 SIM per phone when possible, 3 devices max per router → avoids bans and gives longer lifespan.
- US IP & SIM + US engagement first 7 days → algorithm thinks creator is US-native → traffic 3–5x more valuable.
- They didn't "buy bulk IGs" from ZU etc. → instead built repeatable in-house warmup systems. That was a moat.

2. Platform Exploits That Still Print

- Threads: carousel spam + repeating proven viral posts daily. Agencies literally post the exact same thing across 10–20 accounts, and it keeps working. Comment bait

(30/day/account) = hidden subscriber funnel.

- TikTok Lives → OF Lives: still the #1 highest conversion traffic play. US SIMs from Amazon, no activation, aged Gmail signups. Creators go live TikTok → redirect into OF live. Done right, this single funnel could add 5–20K/month per creator.

- Reddit: the only place left where you can scale infinitely with manpower. 5+ posts/day/account across 10–20 accounts, but the key = not just porn dumps. Rotate content + niche-focused subreddit strategy (smaller active subs = less competition, higher click).

3. Traffic Compounding Tactics

- Cross-pollination loops: Instagram reels feed TikTok shorts → TikTok drives lives → lives redirect to OF → OF content chopped into Reddit clips → Reddit posts link back to IG/Twitter. Everything circulates.

- Database building: every creator they scaled had internal Airtables/Sheets tracking which posts went viral, which subs worked, which promos converted. They didn't "throw content," they tested and doubled down.

4. Money Plays Most Miss

- Retweet groups → not for traffic, but to fake social proof → then use paid promos to amplify. Result = organic accounts pick them up thinking they're hot.

- Paid promos on Twitter: not random, but targeted to accounts that historically send subs. They literally built vendor lists with ROI % logged.

- OF Lives after TikTok lives: The spike in subs + PPVs is where 50%+ of the monthly money comes from. Most agencies don't execute the handoff.

5. Scaling Mindset Shift

- Stop looking at "1 creator = 1 page." The biggest agencies scaled 20–50 accounts per creator per platform.

- Their leverage wasn't better content, it was account volume + consistency. 200+ posts/day per creator across platforms. That's why they outscaled.

Takeaway:
They grew because they treated OF like a distribution business, not a “social media hustle.”

- Infrastructure: phones, SIMs, proxies.
- Volume: 100–200 posts/day across platforms.
- Exploits: TikTok Live → OF Live, Reddit spam, Threads carousel repetition.
- Tracking: internal databases to measure ROI and double down fast.
